LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CRIMINAL COURT .- The Election Riots .- Afer our report closed yesterday, and during the cross-examination of Mr. James R. Riley-

Mr. Key proposed to ask the witness if he was connected with the rioters on that day, to show how far his evidence may be taken in so far as it conflicted with the testimony of Capt Tyler, who represented the committee to have been from hose in possession of the cannon," he having given in evidence that he was appointed by peaceable citizens of Washington, and not by the riot-

Mr Bradley objected to the question as tending to degrade and criminate the witness before the jury, and as not having been asked by the counsel in the examination in chief. The point was debated at some length by the counsel on each side, and finally the Court ruled the question out as not being confined to the subject matter of the examination in chief. The cross-examination of this witness was then continued. He went on to say that he went to get the marines off the ground where they were at that time, out of the way; would not know his companion on that occasion, if he should see him. Wm. Kettleman, sworn.-Knows Chas. Spencer; saw him on the 1st of June last; saw him at the polls on that day; saw him at the market-house first, and afterwards at the corner of I and Seventh street; was with him all the time; did not see him do anything at all; was in the middle of the square between I and K streets when he parted from him, about two minutes, and when he saw him again he was shot; he was shot in the shoulder and on the leg.

Cross-examined .- When witness left Spencer he was going towards Alston's corner, and witness started to go home. Hiram Richey, sworn .- Knows Chas. Spencer; has lived in his neighborhood fifteen years; his general character as a quiet man is remarkably Cross-examined.-Has known him to be fond of running about, but never knew him to be in any disturbance. Jas. Handley, sworn.-Knows Chas. Spencer; he has worked for witness three years; always was a peaceable boy.

Cross-examined.-Never heard of his being ever engaged in any riots or other disturbances. E. Edmondston, sworn.-Knows Chas. Spencer; went up to vote at half-past twelve o'clock; saw Spencer after the marines were there, standing on Magruder's corner; he was very quiet; his character is good; didn't see him after he was

Dr. Everett was recalled by Mr. Bradley -Witness did not intend to be understood, in his former examination, as saying that Capt. Tyler told the committee that he would take the can non; thinks that remark was addressed to the officer on the left of the marines. Walter Lenox, sworn .- Was at the Barracks at the Navy Yard on the first of June. Question by Mr. Scott.-What was your purpose in going there?

Mr Key objected to the question.

Mr. Scott thought the question was a fair one as Capt. Tyler had stated in evidence that he received information of the witness that he would be called upon to go out with his marines; that the first information he got about the cailing out of the marines came from Mr. Lenox. Mr. Key contended that that evidence was brought out by the prosecution in the cross-exam-The Court ruled out the question as irrelevant to the point at issue. Mr. Scott asked the witness what conversation took place between him and the Mayor, at the Mayor's office, on the 1st day of June, in reference to the propriety or necessity of calling out the marines.

Mr. Key objected to the question; and the sev eral counsel debated the point at some length. Mr. Scott said, in his remarks, that it was his intention, in asking those questions, to impeach if possible the testimony which had been given by the prosecution. Overruled by the Court, and Mr. Bradley excepted to the ruling. Robert Isrnel, sworn .- Testified to the returns of the election in the first precinct of the Fourth

Ward; it was done in the bandwriting of the witness; the paper showed the order in which the votes were taken; it was the original official report of the commissioners of the election. Cross-examined .- Witness wrote the names down himself; the list might not have been kept accurately as to the numbers opposite to names of voters which had been erased; witness thought the list was very well kept under the circum-

At ten o'clock this morning the court met, and the trial was resumed. Mr. Bradley called Daniel Fenton, sworn .- Lives in the Seventh Ward of the city; was at Alston's corner on the day the marines were there; was on the curbstone on the west side; was there before they came up; was wounded on that occasion; was making no disturbance at the time; had one foot on the curb and one in the gutter; was in a position to have seen stones thrown at the marines, or pistols fired on them from that corner would have been seen by witness; when they fired the second time witness turned to flee, and fell over Mr. Alston and Mr. Bell, and received a ball in the neck, and got up and staggered off; felt something in his arm, and discovered a wound in his arm; this second wound was received when witness was near I street; Mr. Spencer was wounded and fell at the same time; thinks it was Spencer, but does not know certainly; witness remarked at the time to his friends, "there is Chas. Spencer go and

Cross-examined.-When witness was struck as on his knees; the marines fired on that corner from the left of the line first, and then all up the line; they did not all fire; heard muskets fired at the market house before that.

Joseph M. Downing, sworn -Was present at the Fourth Ward polls just after the affray in the morning; knows Michael Hoover; was standing by his side; he took no part in the affray; he left with witness, who only remained there half an hour; he is a good citizen; bears a good character. James A. Gordon, sworn.-Was on the platform, front of the City Hall, on the first day of Question by Mr. Bradley. "Did you hear the Mayor make any threats to the crowd assembled there on that occasion, that he would order the marines to fire on them ?" Mr. Key objected to the question, as being collateral, and not admissible The point was, after considerable debate, in which Messrs. Bradley and Key participated at some length, overruled, and Mr. Bradley noted an exception to the ruling Samuel E. Douglass, sworn .- Lives in Washington; knew Hughes, who was shot on the 1st day of June. to the American party?

Question by Mr. Bradley .- Did Hughes belong Objected to by Mr. Key. -Was he a notorious character, and was the Hall of the American party draped in mourning on the occasion of his death?

Objected to by Mr. Key. The point, after some debate by the various counsel, was sustained under the particular circumstances, as the evidence to this point had been voluntarily given by the Mayor in his crossexamination The witness went on to say that Hughes lived in the Second Ward for some years; knew him only as a member of a fire company; he was a peaceable man as a fireman; never heard that he was a notorious bad character; has heard that he lived with a mulatto woman; his sentiments were with the American party; that party has no Hall in the First Ward; he was buried by the Union fire company, of which he was a member; the Hall was on that occasion draped in mourning; he was buried from the Union engine house. Cross-examined .- It was a matter of common report that he lived with a mulaito woman; never heard his character spoken of; the American party used to meet at the Union engine-house, but not since a year ago last spring. Mr. Bradley announced that he would rest the case for the defence here, and moved that now a verdict of the jury might be taken in relation to Charles Hurdle, Garner and Jones.

The Court declined giving an order to the jury to find a verdict at this stage of the trial, but said the defendants would be allowed to use them as witnesses if they chose.

The counsel declined using them.

Mr. Key asked to examine other witnesses as to the condition of the polls at the time they were reopened first, and stated that, during the examination of the witnesses for the prosecution, evi-dence had been given incidentally that the polls had been only reopened to a particular class of voters. He said that the evidence had come out, not in relation to the prominent inquiry of the counsel, and he now proposed to contradict evidence which had been given by the detence in relation to that point of the evidence, to show that the poils were reopened only to certain vo-ters, and that another particular class had been excluded. The other point was in relation to the evidence of Birkhead as to the identification of Charles Spencer. He contended that he had a right to call evidence to confirm the evidence of Birkhead in relation to stones being thrown and pistols having been fired from Alston's corner. Mr. Scott, for the defence, objected, on the ground that this had already been admitted in the examination in chief, and could not be properly admitted after the case had been closed by the defence. . The jury then took a recess.

The Court had not decided the point when our report closed.

THAT SHARK!-Of course our readers have noticed in the river reports of the Washington evening papers the announcement of the appearance in the Potomac of a formidable shark, and have no doubt wondered what the dence this marine monster was doing away up country here. There is a pretty good joke connected with this same shark story, which we really must tell, though we half promised not to "let on." Be it known. then, that the aforesaid River Reporters-one of whom is the head of a family already, and the other hopes soon to be a husband and a fatherhave had their nice sense of decorum inexpressibly wounded all the summer long by the sight of the rascally boys who will go in swimming with their pantaloons off, in broad daylight, directly in view of folks. The R. R.'s didn't like it. They determined to put a stop to it; not that they wished to interfere with the boys' sports, but the public morals were at stake-and here the R. R.'s planted themselves. There was danger, too, in it and the father in prospective, and the father already, groaned in spirit, as in fancy's eye they saw their male offspring come to a watery grave. So they spread themselves for a reform—remonstrated with the youngsters on the impropriety of the thing - didn't work - on its danger 'cramps," &c .- didn't work neither; threatened them with the police; boys snickered, and as they plunged into the water, forked end up, quavered their pedal extremities in the air, in a manner disrespectful to the reporters. Then the R. R.'s, mighty in resources, laid their heads (or rather their white hats) together, and conceived a project which they firmly be-lieved would do the business for the boys. That evening appeared the shark story. Bless us, how the R. R.'s dwelt upon his colossal proportions, the size of his front teeth, the devilish look of his eye, and the commotion he made in the water where he disported, which, by a singular coincidence, happened to be just on the bathing ground of the young 'uns! Then the R. R 's retired to their virtuous pillows, and the next morning, on approaching the river, felicitated themselves that their eyes were no more to be shocked by the tenyear old nudities. We submit, then, if it was not confoundedly trying to the sensibilities of these young moral reformers, to find the water fairly swarming with young uns, armed with sharp sticks, wading up to their chins, looking for the

THE FIREMEN'S SUPPER LAST NIGHT .- The entertainment given last night at the Washington House by the Metropolitan Hook and Ladder Company to their guests from Richmond-"The United" of that city-was as elegant in all its arrangements as any similar affair that ever came off in the Federal Metropolis.

The company, in all numbering near a hundred persons, sat down to table at 10 p. m. All the delicacies of the season were spread before them, capitally prepared to tempt their appetites sharpened by their long day of marching and countermarching around Washington and Alexandria. Mr. Shook, the acting president of the Richmond company, presided, flanked by Mr. Martin, the orator of the Metropolitan, and Mr. Atkinson, the representative for the occasion of the Alexandria fire department. Esputa's fine band was stationed at the other end of the long tables, and throughout the feast ever and anon discoursed harmoneous music. Ere being scated, however, the Virginians were welcomed to the feast on behalf of the hosts, by Mr. Martin, in a neat and appropriate speech, to which Mr. Shook made an animated reply, that was received with applause on the part of the Washingtonians around the board.

After the solids had been duly disposed of, and amid the popping of champagne and the mellifluous gurglings of the contents of the bottles, speeches were delivered by Messrs. Martin. Shook, Cartis of New York, Douglass, Atkinson, Geary and others, which, of course, were drank in as satisfactorily as the champagne with which they were washed down.

At 12 o'clock the happy company rose from the table, and proceeded to the parlors of the house preparatory to dispersing for the night.

THE CORPORATION Loss .- The damage by the late rains to Corporation property has been much more considerable than was at first supposed Not a brick is left of the arch over Capitol branch, at North Gapitol street, near New York avenue. in its proper place, and some of the heavy gneiss rocks used in the foundation of the abutments were washed as much as one hundred yards from their places. The building of this arch cost the city $500, and was new. This is the fifth bridge destroyed by freshets at this place, and for twenty or twenty-five years the Corporation has endeavored to get a bridge to stand permanently there.

The fron bridge over Capitol branch, at H street, was carried away. The cost of this bridge must have been considerable, as the workmanship was of excellent quality, as well as the material, and it was regarded as a permanent struc-

AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC, last night, the lecture of Mr. Crouch was replete with instruction. The speaker lectured on the differences which mark the genius of the great English composers, as well as the German school of opera music After the lecture, the subject was illustrated by the performance of several choice selections from the great composers, Sir Henry Bishop, Balfe, Colcot, Wallace, and others. The selections embraced also a number of the beautiful airs from that popular opera of Maritana, of Wallace's which were given with great and critical exactness, by Messrs. Ed. Jones and Crouch and Miss Mattie Beech, the popular vocalist. The perform nees of Miss Beech received the wellmerited and long-continued applause of the audi ence, which gave the best evidences of the high estimation in which she is held by her friends. and especially those of musical tastes. Mis-Beech has a soprano voice second to none in our city for compass, smoothness, and flexibility, which, added to the very superior training to which it has been subjected at the hands of her instructor, Mr. Crouch, is capable of performing the most difficult and beautiful of the popular operatic gems in a manner to win for her high laurels as a vocalist.

MAN STABBED IN ALEXANDRIA .- On Wednesday night, just at the close of the performance at the circus of Eldred & Co., in Alexandria, an affray occurred, in which a man named John Cooper, attached to the circus, was seriously, if not fatally, wounded. Three young men, John Ewbanks, James Trammel, and Tom Cook. charged with connexion in the matter, were ar rested by the police and watch immediately at the conclusion of the affair, and, after an examination before Justices Price, Violett, and Buckingham, were recommitted to jail to await a further examination on Monday next. C. E. art appeared for the prosecution, and George W. Brent for the accused.

DONNELLY, THE LATE RESIDENT OF WASH-INGTON, NOW HELD FOR MURDER .- This individual, Dr. James P. Donnelly, whose arrest and imprisonment in New Jersey, for murder, is known to all, has addressed a letter to a gentleman in this city, protesting his innocence, and asking a suspension of the opinion of his former friends here, some of whom are persons of as much respectability as reside in the Federal Me-

INQUEST -Yesterday Coroner Woodward held an inquest over the body of a white boy, named John Fendall, who was drowned the evening previous in a hole in North Capitol Street, near New York avenue, made by the late heavy rains. He had ventured there to bathe, with other boys, but got beyond his depth Verdict of the jury rendered accordingly.

COMMENDABLE CAUTION .- A gentleman, writing to this city from Virginia, says that after the heavy rains, while he was traveling on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, he noticed that as the train approached the bridge it was stopped and the bridge examined before the cars were allowed to pass across. THE METHODIST E. CHURCH SOUTH FESTIVAL at Thorn's Building, Seventh street, was well attended last night. It will be kept open tonight and to-morrow night; and really no more pleasant resort can be desired of an evening, to say nothing of the satisfaction afforded in contributing something to so good a cause as that of the Sabbath School. CHURCH DEDICATION .- The new Methodist Protestant Church, near Ball's Cross Roads, was dedicated to the worship of God on Sunday last. Impressive sermons were preached by Revs. Drs. Reese of Baltimore, and Murray of Georgetown, and a collection taken up, which amounted to THE RICHMOND FIREMEN Were escorted early BURNED Ur .- We mentioned a day or two ago that the rowdy ruffians "using" about Ball's Cross Roads in Alexandria county, Va., had on Sunday night last pulled down the building in that vicinity known as the Mount Carmel Episcopa Church, in which young Birch was not long since killed by young Austin, in self-defence, as the Court decided On the following night. (of Monday,) we learn, the remains of the building were burned up, evidently by the same hands that pulled it down; and a placard was posted near the fire bearing on it the words, "The last of the Austin slaughter house." From our knowledge of the manner in which the authorities of Alexandria county have long permitted ruffians and rowdies to conduct themselves around Bail's Cross Roads, we can have no hope that efficient measures will be taken to bring the perpetrators of this cowardly act of incendiarism to justice. We were told by a gentleman that they threaten also to ourn to the ground the beautiful new Methodist Protestant Church in the same vicinity, known as the Mount Olivet Church, which was only dedicated on Sunday last. It will take more than that act even, we fear, to induce the police of the county to try, properly, to bring them to justice.

JUVENILE GANGS .- Within a week past, quite a crowd of small boys have been accused of larcenies, petty and grand. Some of them have been arrested, while others are still prowling about Five have been caught by officers Kimball and King in the last three days, and their ages range from eleven to sixteen years. What can be done with these little fellows? The officers do not like to arrest them, but duty ob iges them; the owners of property stolen will not prosecute if they can possibly help it; and justices' grieve when they are forced to commit them to jail. Many are dismissed on promises to do better; which they never fulfil. In the numbers of arrests of those small boys. made within a few weeks, our citizens can see the material for another gang similar to that which so greatly annoyed them a few years ago and which occupied the attention of all the police and Auxiliary Guard for months before it could be broken up. That gang was known as the "Forty Thieves," and the boy who was their leader was an accomplished thief; but among those now in training are many who are quite as

B. Hardin, Esq., in Alexandria county, Va., (about seven miles from Washington,) his wagon was washed down stream and a negro woman, the property of his master, who was riding with him was drowned, and also one of his pair of mules. been visible the last two days among a large class of our most respectable citizens, caused by a young woman of very respectable connections, being decoyed from her home by a man who was a boarder in the family of the girl, and took advantage of his position as such to ingratiate himself into her affections. The parents forbid him the house. Soon after this he decoyed her off to Washington, where, after a considerable search, she was found and brought back home, remaining apparently satisfied until Wednesday morning when the offence was again repeated. During the day the father received information that the girl had been taken to a house on Gay street, where a large company of gentlemen assembled on Wednesday night, accompanied by an officer and a legal process, for the purpose of making a search. The occupant of the house offered them every facility for doing so, assuring them at the same time that the parties were not there. The search was made, however; but if they had been there they got wind of what was going and fled. Up to the present time nothing has been ascertained of their whereabouts.

This is not the first nor second offence of this and a similar character which has been perpetrated in our city during the last year or so, and our citizens knowing that anything like an attempt at a criminal prosecution under the present laws of the District would be likely to end in a sort of legal farce, and that no family, however respectable, is safe from the wiles of the perpetrators of such infamous offences, seem determined in the future to take the settlement of all such offences into their own hands. We should not be surprised, if the offender in this instance is caught, to see the present indignation manifest itself in the application of Judge Lynch's code in some shape, not only upon the principal, but apon several others who are supposed to be his iders and abettors, if their guilt can be fastened ipon them with any degree of certainty.

The author of the article headed Death of Young Moore," has committed a gross error in attributing to us anything like a disposition to aggravate the feelings of the afflicted family in our article on the inquest. He has not only impugned our motives, but has sought to fix blame pon the attending physician and members of the jury of inquest. The verdict supports our remarks on the subject to the letter. The author s well aware that after the family had changed heir minds and refused to allow the post mortem examination to be made, they were admonished three times by Coroner Woodward and Dr. Maccal that it was a duty they owed they owed to society; that their refusal might defeat the ends of public justice, as the post mortem examination proposed was the only means by which the attending physician, who was the principal witness, could arrive at the real cause of his death, and the jury at a proper decision. As to the charge against Dr Maccal of having refused to post the examination until the next day, (Sunday.) he author is well aware that the family was informed of the impossibility of the Doctor's doing so, for the reason that two members of his family were sick and required his attention, and that the Coroner was not aware that he had the power to cause, or the jury would have consented to another adjournment. The only arrivals, since our last report, are the schr Mist, from New York, with 800 bbls of cement to Capt. M. C. Meigs for the Washington Aqueduct, and the steamer Diamond State, from Baltimore, to Hyde & Davidson.
